The "Fans" Can See the New Players Exhibit Themselves.

This is the eventful day on which the Indianapolis Western League team gets action for the first time, though not in an extensive way, the opposing club being the Butler University nine, which, while doubtless strong in college company, will scarcely be able to hold its own with the leaguers. The game will be interesting, however, because all of the Indianapolis pitchers and catchers will be given an opportunity to show their manner of playing, each going in for a few innings. Thus a chance will be afforded to size up the general style of their work. If Butler's pitcher proves effective the college boys might give the new club something of an argument after The game will be called at 3:30 and the Ohio-street grounds are ready for business for the season. The batting order will be as follows: Indianapolis-McTamany, m.; Mills, 2d b; Leldy, l. f.; Graham, 3d b; Devinney, s.; Gray, r. f.; Plock, 1st b; catcher, Westlake and Snyder; pitchers, Phillips, Orth and Mauck. Board of Trade Governors on the Interstate-Commerce Act.

A Protest Against the Income Tax Lively Meeting of the Committee to Discuss These Questions.

The regular meeting of the governing committee of the Board of Trade last night was devoted almost wholly to a discussion of the interstate-commerce law, and the question of whether or not it was good taste on the part of the board to gently protest against the proposed income tax. These matters were brought up for discussion by the report of the committee on communications and resolutions, the consideration of which occupied the entire evening. This report was as follows:

"Your committee on communications and resolutions begs to report that it has considered communications received since the last regular meeting and would recommend action thereon as follows: The execu-tive committee of the National Transportation Association submits a memorial for indorsement by this Board of Trade, in which Congress is petitioned to amend the interstate-commerce law, to the end that all carriers shall be required to extend to all shippers fair and reasonable rates, public rates, stable rates and rates equitably adjusted to the protection of all localities and communities, and the penalties now de-nounced against individuals and shippers be abrogated and in place thereof severa money penalties to be imposed upon corporations whose servants or officials may violate the provisions of the act. Your committee recommends the indorsement of the memorial and that copies of it be forwarded to our Senators and Representatives

"Your committee would also recommend the approval of a petition presented by Mr. George L. Bradbury (member of this Board of Trade), and general manager of the L. E. & W. railway, embodying practically the same amendments to the interstate law as those submitted by the National Transportation Association, that signatures to it be secured as requested in his communication and then forwarded to our Senators at Washington city. "Another communication has been received from the executive committee of the National Transportation Association, in which it is stated that the Chicago & Grand Trunk railway had agreed to place in the hands of all its agents, for general use, to the exclusion of all other forms, a plain, common law bill of lading (a copy whereof was inclosed), and that the executive committee had reason to believe that other lines would in the near future adopt a similar instrument as their standard bill of lading. and that this action was the result of the persistent efforts of the National Transportation Association. The secretary of this Board of Trade had been directed to acknowledge receipt of this communication and to express the gratitude of its members to the National Transportation Association for its efforts in behalf of the shippers of the country. "A communication has been received from the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, inclosing resolutions proposing to amend the interstate-commerce law, and requesting the influence of this Board of Trade in securing their adoption. The secretary has been directed to reply to the similar communication and state that this board has now under consideration similar propositions to amend the interstate-commerce act, and that same will be acted upon at our next

"A communication has been received from the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, embodying a memorial to Congress setting forth a number of reasons why it would be unwise to impose a tax on incomes. Also inclosing resolutions adopted by it in regard to the pending tariff bill upon our trade relations with Canada and urging that on the passage of the tariff law it should not become operative so far as Canada is concerned, unless by proclamation of the President, and that such proclamation be issued only when advised by the commission to be appointed by him to meet a similar commission from the government of Canada. Your committee recommend that this board indorse the memorial protesting against the income tax and also the resolutions in regard to our trade relations with Canada. A communication has been received from the secretary of the Westchester Free Hospital, New York, which the committee respectfully refers to your honorable body." HURTS THIS CITY.

This report was considered by paragraphs and those relating to the interstate law were vigorously discussed and sat upon with a good deal of weight, it being quite evident that a majority of the members of the governing committee regarded the law as harmful to Indianapolis interests. D. P. Erwin supported the recommendation of the communications committee and said that the members who talked about the injury the law worked to Indianapolis were going back into ancient history, when the railroads here were, several of them, free lances, so to speak, and cut each other's throats on rates all around. Now they were all in the big railway systems, and, maturally, there was little or no cutting. Mr. Gordon, Mr. Scott, Mr. Hall and others opposed Mr. Erwin's view with much earnestness, contending that ten years ago any one of half a dozen grain houses here handled more grain in a day than do all the houses together now in a week. Mr. Hall said the interstate-commerce act had practically wiped out the grain trade of Indianapolis, which, like other inland points, had been an excellent grain market. The lake and large river perts could always get a satisfactory rate. but the inland points never, under the present law, the provisions of which were continually violated at these ports where competition of the water-ways made it advantageous to forget the law. Here the righteous freight agents, he held, knew nothing of these violations, and, there being no advantage to be had, they very naturally observed the law to the letter. and also to the detriment of Indianapolis. Theoretically, he said, Mr. Erwin, who contended that the law protected the small and large shipper alike, was right, but the theory was a good deal like the constitutional saying that all men were born free and equal.

After some further talk Mr. Lazarus moved that the first paragraph of the report be concurred in, and Mr. Kinney promptly moved to lay that motion on the This was done, and a motion then prevailed that the committee's recommendation be not concurred in. Similar action was taken on the second recommendation

The bill-of-lading paragraph of the report, and also the paragraph following relative to amending the interstate-commerce act, went through without opposition, but when the recommendation on the income tax and the Canadian reciprocity question came up there was another hitch. Edward Hawkins thought it unwise to mix up in a political question upon which the two great parties were squarely divided, and moved to nonconcur in the recommendation. Mr. Erwin didn't regard it as necessarily a political question, neither party being a unit on it. He believed it was a broad subject of general interest, and that if the Board of Trade wasn't liberal enough to consider subjects of such general importance then it was not fit for much. Mr. Hawkins insisted that all Democratic Congressmen were for the income tax and Republicans against it, and if it wasn't politics he would like to know what was.

INCOME TAX OPPOSED. Mr. Erwin insisted that the right of the United States to come into Indiana and tax all incomes of $4,000 and over was a question to be considered from a business rather than a political standpoint. If a two-per-cent. tax could be so imposed why not one of 50 per cent. He insisted that it was clearly a business proposition, and thought the protest was not strong enough. The drift of talk favored the committee's report, and Mr. Hawkins's motion to nonconcur was defeated. He sprung the noquorum objection, but a roll call showed just a quorum present. He then demanded the yeas and nays, saying it would be well to show just how we were helping Congress get away with this problem. The vote on his motion to nonconcur was as follows:

Yeas-Messrs. Osterman, Hawkins, Murphy. Ryan and Robert Scott. Messrs. Wildman, Sloan, Baker, Blaker, Erwin, Gordon, Hall, Hendricks, Holten, Kennedy, Lazarus, Lilly, Perry, William Scott, Shaw, Van Camp and Wallick. The recommendation of the committee on the income tax was then concurred in. The second portion of the paragraph, with reference to the trade relations of this country with Canada, was then discussed, and Mr. Gordon thought it better be dropped, as the board might be regarded as drifting into politics. Mr. Erwin believed the recommendation all right and a compliment to President Cleveland. It was a fallacy not to take up clear business subjects because of their connection with polities. He called attention to the fact that New York Chamber of Commerce, which was agitating this question, was composed of Democrats and Republicans alike, and deprecated the mention of pelities in the Indianapolis body. Mr. Hawkins insisted that this Canadian reciprocity question had more politics in it than any-

why Mexico wasn't included as well as Canada. There was some further discussion, and the recommendation of the committee was concurred in by practically the same vote as the income tax protest. A communication from the secretary of the Westchester Hospital, regretting the the Cummings live stock transit bill, was read and placed on file. Mr. Ryan, who was absent at the last meeting, said he understood there was some disposition to censure the membership committee for lack of energy. He wished to resent any such criticism, and explained briefly what had been accomplished by that committee, the board's membership now being full-five hundred members. President Wildman praised the membership committee warmly, and deprecated any criticism that had been made, and upon motion of Mr. Erwin the governors extended a vote of thanks and confidence in the committee. The action of the governing committee n withdrawing from the National Board of Trade was, upon motion of Mr. Murphy, rescinded. The latter made the motion to withdraw at the last meeting, and says he still believes it to be the wise thing to do, but that, on account of the small attendance when this action was taken, he deemed it wise to allow the matter to come up before a full meeting of the governors. It is likely that at some meeting in the near future the governors will again vote to pull out of the national board. Meanwhile Indianapolis retains its membership in that body.

AN OPIUM ORDINANCE

The Council Takes First Step to Break Up the Chinese Joints.

Alabama-Street Ordinances Killed by Expiration of Time-Contingent Fund for Erroneous Assessments.

The recent raid of an opium "joint" in Monument place has borne fruit and brought to notice the fact that there was no ordinance or State law against the conducting of such a place. At last night's meeting of the Council an ordinance was introduced making it an offense to conduct such a place. It provides that any person, corporation or firm who shall maintain any room, apartment or house where opium or other noxicus or poisonous drugs shall be smoked, inhaled or kept for the purpose of being smoked or inhaled, or who shall permit any person or persons to smoke or inhale oplum or other noxious or poisonous drugs in such room, apartment or house shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than $100 nor more than $500, to which may be added imprisonment for six menths. The ordinance also provides that any person leasing a room or building for such purpose shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than $25 nor more than $200, to which may be added imprisonment for three months. The penalty for visiting such rooms is the same as that provided for leasing them for the purpose. The ordinance was referred to the committee on public morals. The ordinance providing a method for the sale of public property, which caused so much confusion at the session of the last city legislature, was called up and passed. It provides that property of less than $200 in value may be sold by the board under whose jurisdiction the property is. Property valued at more than $200 shall be sold by committee appointed from the Council. Under the head of reports from committees Chairman Drew, of the sewers, streets and alleys committee, handed up a report on the Alabama-street ordinances and recommended their passage. In making his report he said he had just learned, during the day, that it would be necessary to take some action on these ordinances at the meeting or they would become void by lapse of time. He said he had not learned this until late in the day, and had no opportunity to call a meeting of the committee. At the proper time Drew moved to call the ordinances from the committee, but this was promptly squelched by a motion from Mr. Shaffer to lay Drew's motion on the table. Shaffer said the ordinance had never been before the committee, and he was opposed to taking them from the hands of the committee before it had time to act upon them. The motion to lay on the table was seconded by Hennessey, and carried. THE PESTHOUSE SALE. A message was received from the Mayor calling the attention of the Council to the proposed sale of the present site of the pesthouse and the old ordinance authorizing the sale of the property. He said there were doubts as to the validity of the old ordinance, and submitted to the Council an ordinance repealing it, and also a new ordinance providing for the sale of the property. He urged upon the body the necessity of immediate action and asked that both ordinances be passed last night under a suspension of the rules. Two members were absent, and, under the recent construction of the city attorney that the requirement of a unanimous vote to suspend the rules meant every member of the Council, it was impossible to suspend the rules, and the ordinances were compelled to take the usual course. A request was received from Controller Trusler that the Council transfer $1. from the sewer fund to a fund to be used n refunding to property owners erroneous provements. The request was referred to the finance committee. The proprietors of Irwin & Son's show sent a request to the Council that they be permitted to give a performance in this city without payment of the usual license fee. Their request was based upon the statement that the show had been equipped in this city, and all the materials used and wagons built had been secured here as nearly as possible. A facetious councilman moved that the request be sent to the committee on public morals, but it was sent to the finance committee. The finance committee recommended that the petitions of Messrs. Morris and Weghorst for reimbursement for alleged overpayments of taxes be referred to the city attorney, which was done. The committee recommended the passage of the bond refunding ordinance, and it was passed. When the vote was taken upon the final passage of the ordinance Costello asked to explain his vote. He said the finance committee met a half hour sooner than the time set when this ordinance was before it for consideration, and had never given the minority an opportunity to even sign the report. He then voted "aye" for the ordi-

and doubly-paid assessments for public im-

nance. President Allen said he wanted to inform the heads of committees that the minority was not to be ignored. Chairman Rauh, of the finance committee, said the meeting had been called to order because several of the members who were present had urgent business to attend to that would prevent their remaining if it was not called early. He said the meetings of the committee were held on Friday nights for the accommodation of the mi-An invitation was received from the Women's Council, which meets at the Propylaeum on April 4, for the Council to attend

The Western Passenger Association lines have refused to make the reduced rates asked by some of the largest gatherings to be held during the year. Among the requests refused for cheap rates to annual meetings are those of the Catholic Order of Foresters, Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Baptist Young People's Unions of America and the encampment of the G. A. R. at Pittsburg. The principal cause of the refusals was that n most instances a return limit of too great length was asked.

TOOK CARBOLIC ACID

Julius Chomel Commits Suicide in failure of the board to act favorably on an Illinois-Street Saloon.

> Had a Tumor on His Brain and Had Been Drinking Heavily-His Peculiar Actions.

Yesterday, shortly after 12 o'clock, Julius Chomel, aged thirty-two years, residing at No. 100 West Georgia street, killed himself by taking a heavy dose of carbolic acid, in the Club saloon, Heinlien & Thompson, proprietors, No. 65 North Illinois street.

Chomel had just recovered from a long period of drinking and his mind was undoubtedly unbalanced from the unusual test to which it had been subjected. About noon he went to the Heims drug store, No. 51 North Illinois street and asked the clerk for 15 cents' worth of carbolic acid. The clerk inquired as to its use. "Well, replied Chomel, "I'm going to kill some roaches. Do you think that stuff will do

"Sure thing," answered the clerk. "Do you think this is enough to kill a man?" queried Chomel as he was handed the bottle containing an ounce of the acid. "Yes. It will lay him out in a jiffy," responded the clerk, "and I advise you to be careful as to how you use it."

"Oh, I am on to it," was the answer as Chomel disappeared through the door and walked north on Illinois street. He went into the Club saloon and, after a few moments' conversation with Proprietor Thompson, who was at the bar, he asked for a

"What do you want with a glass?" asked Thompson, as he handed him a small wine

"Oh, I am not feeling well, and I want to take a little medicine." He went into a wine room in the rear of the saloon, where the wash basin was and for the next few moments nothing was heard of him, until he was seen coming from the room with a wild look on his face and in a somewhat shuffling manner.

"Good-bye, boys. 'Skip's' gone," said he to Ollie Lanham and Will Ousley and several others who were in the saloon. He shook hands with them and then staggered out the rear door. Will Cusley noticed that "Skip," as he was familiarly called along the "levee," was unusually white about the lips. Just then Chomel was seen to fall in a heap on the brick walk. "My God," shouted Ousley, "Skip has killed himself." He immediately hurried to the City Dispensary to summon a physician. Lanham, Thompson and several others rushed to where Chomel was lying on the walk. He was breathing with difficulty. He was carried into the saloon where he expired in a few moments. He was unconscious when found and only once were his lips seen to move as if he would speak, but his efforts resulted only in a slight gurgle. He closed his eyes and was dead. Dr. Terrell, in company with Ousley, arrived at this moment, but the doctor saw at once that he was not needed and left. Chomel's body was taken to Renihan, Long & Hedges's morgue, No. 72 North Illinois street, just across the street. Coroner Beck was informed as was also Chomel's family. Coroner Beck could state nothing only that Chomel must have suffered intense agony in the few moments before his death. Alexander Chomel, the dead man's father, was away from his office and did not learn of his son's death until several hours later. Chomel's brother went to the morgue and although very much shocked, stated that his brother's actions did not greatly surprise him. The family was seen at their home, No. 100 West Georgia street. Mr. Chomel is proprietor and editor of the Catholic Record. He has been established there for several years. The establishment and the family home are in the same building. Chomel has, at times, worked on the Record, but not recently. During the last several weeks he has drunk heavily and his mind was affected. This was noticed by his relatives and the workmen on the Record. Yesterday morning Chomel acted very peculiarly. When any member of the family spoke to him, he would look at them in an insane-like manner and rush past them into the rear yard. He did this several imes until noticed, about 11 o'clock, by George Billow, an employe in the office. Billow and Chomel were strong friends and Chomel did not attempt to elude him. Billow asked Chomel what was the trouble. "Oh, George, I believe I am going crazy, My brain is all afire. I am going to kill Billow remonstrated with him and finally succeeded in getting him to promise to stay in the Record office until his return. Bil low went over to Illinois street to get shaved and returned in about ten minutes. Chomel had disappeared. It was Billow's intentions to summon an officer and have Chomel locked up until the exact condition of Chomel's mind became known. He, at the time, suspected that Chomel's mind was deranged. When he found Chomei missing, he at once surmised that Chomel had determined to kill himself. Several week's ago, Chomel's mother requested the proprietors of the Club saloon not to sell her son any liquor. The request was granted and, though Chomel staid around the saloon a great part of the time, he was never given or sold any drinks. A day or two ago Chomel was conversing with the bartender on the recent suicides. Chomel stated that those persons were all out of their misery. "Tom," said Chomel abruptly to the Lartender, "No," was the reply. "There is not one in the place. But what do you want with a gun?" "Oh," was the answer "I want kill myself." Chomel's friends and relatives are of the opinion that Chomel's death was the result of temporary insanity. They are equally confident that, if he had been in his right mind yesterday the awful tragedy would not have occurred. His body will be taken to his home on Georgia street, and the family will take charge of the burial.

At the meeting of the West Indianapolis Council, last night, the bill of the Indianapolis Light and Power Company, amounting to $380, was allowed. Justice Allen's bill of $55 for city livery and the telephone bill of $15 were also allowed. The Council accepted a city seal, which represents the goddess of Liberty, with scroll work encircled around. Clerk Finch's quarterly report was read and placed on file.

An Important Witness Detained. Hattie Mitchell, one of the most important witnesses for the State in the prosecution of Parker and McAfee for the murder of druggist Eyster, was taken into custody yesterday, to be held as a witness trial a second time. Hattie Mitchell, it will be remembered, testified that she saw Mc-Afee on North Mississippi street in the vicinity of the drug store a few minutes before the murder and at a time when Mc-Afee claims he was down town delivering a package to the express office. After the verdict upon the former trial it was reported that the girl had said she knew even more than she had testiled to, but had not told all she knew for fear that the defendants might be acquitted and do her injury, or, if convicted, their friends might injure her. The prosecutor feared that she might not be at hand and ready to testify when the case was called for the second trial, and ordered her detention. She gave bond in the sum of $300 for her appearance when wanted and was released.

STEAMER EMS SAFE

Towed to an Azore Island Port by Another Vessel.

Her Steering Shaft Broken and Rudder Frame Injured - Passengers All Well-General Foreign News.

FAYAL, Azore Islands, April 2.-The North German Lloyd steamship Ems, Captain Reimkasten, from Bremen March 17 and Southampton March 18 for New York, now several days overdue at the latter port, was towed in here to-day in a disabled condition by the British oil steamer Wildflower, Captain Livingstone, from Delaware on March 19 for Blaye, France. The Wildflower is owned by Alfred Stuart & Co., and hails from London. She is of 1,745 tons register.

It is also reported that the Ems was leaking on March 27, when the Wildflower was sighted. This was about 700 miles from the Azore islands, for which land the disabled steamer was working under the small amount of sail she could spread. The damage to the steamship would seem to have occurred on March 21, when about five days out from Southampton, and she seems to have experienced most severe weather when in latitude 43.45 north and longitude 41. Though the Ems was leaking her pumps prevented the cargo or the mails from suffering, and also kept down the water below the danger limits. The passengers are all well and express themselves delighted at having reached a port of safety.

It is understood that the agents of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company have instructed Captain Stoermer, who is in command of the Kaiser Wilhelm II, to call at this port, transship the passengers from the Ems and take them to New York.
